TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE.

A COLLISION OF STEAMERS IN THE ENGLISH CHANNEL.

One of the Vessels Goes Down With One Hundred and Thirty-Two Souls—A Dense Fog the Cause of the Accident. List of the Saved and Missing.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The Netherlands line steamer W. A. Scholten, Capt. Taal, left Rotterdam for New York Saturday and collided with the steamer Rosa Mary, ten miles off Dover, at 11 p. m. and sunk. The steamer Ebro, of Sunderland, rescued ninety of the passengers and 132 are missing.

At the time of the accident a dense fog prevailed, and the Scholten was struck on the port bow by the Rosa Mary, and she went down with a hole eight feet wide in her side in twenty minutes. Directly after the shock all was confusion aboard the sinking steamer, and the shrieking, jostling crowd of steerage passengers made the loss of life greater than it would have been had they obeyed the captain's orders and kept quiet. Two boats were lowered, but it was found impossible to cut off the boats on the starboard side. Many secured life belts and were saved. Several women who had the belts were deprived of them by Dutch sailors, who snatched them from the women's bodies. The Ebro had a quantity of lumber on board which the captain or crew threw in the water, and to which some clung and were rescued.

Conflicting stories about the disaster are told by the two ships' crews. The Rosa Mary had out masthead lights but no side lights, indicating that she was at anchor. An officer of the Scholten says he supposed the Rosa Mary was at anchor and gave her sufficient room so as to pass, but he discovered too late that she was coming down on the port bow. Officers of the Rosa Mary say that they were at anchor and did not steam up until morning.

Several bodies were recovered at Dover, among them Henri Blanc, of Oulo, the sole cabin passenger. Large numbers of the bodies look as though they had been frozen to death. The water was so extremely cold that many perished from exhaustion.

The steamer Scholten was a first-class Clyde-built steamship, thirteen years old, 1710 net tonnage, and valued at $250,000. She had a permit for sixty cabin, forty intermediate and 530 steerage passengers, and is believed to have had a cargo of dry goods, gin, Rhine wines and herring.

It is stated that a mackerel boat, which has just arrived at Hastings, reports that a steamer ran across and damaged her nets in the early part of last night, and that the mackerel boat gave chase to the vessel in the hope of identifying her and claiming compensation. While chasing the steamer the crew of the mackerel boat saw her run into the Scholten. A color of truth is given this story by the fact that fragments of fishing nets were found on the bows of the Rosa Mary.

Two bodies, victims of the Scholten disaster, were brought ashore this morning at Deal, one of which has been identified as that of Capt. Taal, master of the lost vessel. Mr. Robson, one of the rescued passengers, states that the Scholten had just weighed anchor when the collision occurred. He says that there were 800 belts on board, and that the passengers mostly secured them, but that they were very nearly useless, as the ship was engulfed so soon after the collision. Robson also states that the Scholten's decks burst when she foundered, thus adding greatly to the loss of life. The vessel now lies in twenty fathoms of water, and is in the way of shipping. The survivors of the wrecked Scholten will sail on Wednesday for New York on another steamer, provided by the company.

Chief Mate Wells, of the steamer Rosa Mary, said this morning to a United Press representative: "We left Hartlepool last Friday under the command of Capt. Webster and with a crew of sixteen men. About 8:30 on Saturday night the collision occurred. We had been at anchor since 8 o'clock. The captain and I were on the bridge. The sea was calm, our lights were burning brightly and the fog bell was being constantly sounded. I first saw the steamer that collided with us off our starboard bow. She was then showing red and green lights, indicating that she was shaping her course to the starboard side. We could not shift our position as the tide was ebb and were anchored. I next noticed the steamer port her helm and attempt to cross our bows. The tide, however, was not rightly judged, and the vessel settled on our bows, cutting the Rosa Mary to the waters edge. I cannot tell the name of the vessel that collided with us. Whatever vessel it was she proceeded on her course and soon disappeared in the darkness. We remained at anchor during the night and were piloted to Dover at 7 o'clock in the morning. There we docked."

Capt. Webster, of the Rosa Mary, states that the weather from the time he left Hartlepool, was hazy.

On Saturday morning the fog became so dense they were compelled to anchor for three hours off Halford. At 11 o'clock they proceeded and passed the east Goodwin lightship at 7 o'clock in the evening. The fog becoming again thick, they anchored at 8 o'clock, the steamer being then about eight miles west southwest of the east Goodwin light. The forecastle lookout was the first to intimate the approach of a vessel. The collision, Capt. Webster says, occurred about 10:30 p. m.

A List of the Saved and Missing.

New York, Nov. 22.—Mr. W. H. Van der Toon, general agent of the Netherlands-American Steam Navigation company, received this morning a cablegram giving the following particulars concerning the passengers on the W. A. Scholten, which was sunk off Dover, England, on Saturday night by collision with the steamer Rosa Mary, of Hartlepool.

Saved—First-class, A. C. Hamilton, L. Ganker.

Second-class—N. Reich, John Gehelns and Baron DeCes.

Steerage—Catherine Froelich, Simon Buder, A. M. Heusteter, Sarah Zuchmann, Anton Johstom, Fred Miles, Lewis Bergstein, Sarah Louise Gault, Jude Lewinsohn, Schmul Kaulink, Kainer Tush Kaliso, Maria Seiba, Magdaine Zonal, Josef Meier, Maie Hobelesberger, Fred Hill Stephen, George Appleby, Isaac Robinson, Herbert Reiteo, E. E. Svorsky, Josef Subotnik, Z. Schotsselder, Heinrich Pastoll, Theodor Q. Willow, and Joseph Voindreau. The following passengers for whom tickets had been purchased in America were also saved: Lorea Dreisch, Marie Kosaig, Carl Jaske, Carl Mueller and Barbara Spata.

The following are missing: First class—Otto Bauer, Henry Blanco Faaga.

Second class—Cyril Bromonsky, Jacob Guttman, A. Kany, Giuseppe De Brodin, August Rauch, Anna De Vyner, Henry Kenyon.

Bard, Gustav Wiel, Johann Miedle.

The officers of the company in this city were crowded this morning with men and women, enquiring about the fate of friends or relatives who were passengers on the Scholten.

DISASTERS ON THE LAKE.

A Number of Vessels Suffer from a Terrible Storm on Lake Michigan.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The three-masted schooner Stampede was on Saturday anchored off Racine when the violent gale which prevailed, caused her to break two chains and she was driven up the lake. She was seen drifting by Chicago last night, but tugs refused to go to her assistance because of the heavy sea raging. Twenty-eight miles below the city the captain succeeded in beaching her. A large mastiff on the schooner was thrown overboard with a rope about his neck, in the hope that he would swim ashore with it. The rope was too heavy, however, and the poor brute was drowned. In the meantime the life-saving crew from this city were on the ground, and succeeded in getting a line to the schooner, and her crew of eight men with their luggage were rescued.

Reports from different lake ports show that the storms of Saturday and Sunday were very disastrous. The schooner Penobscot, which arrived yesterday, reports the loss of her master, Capt. Charles Johnson, of Milwaukee.

The steam barge Thomas H. Smith and consort left Sheboygan for here, but were forced to anchor when two miles south of the harbor pier. The crews were rescued by the life-saving crew.

The schooner Constitution was brought to Alpena looking badly.

Fears are expressed for the safety of the passenger propeller City of Duluth, which was due at Ashland, Wis., Sunday.

The Storm Abated.

MARQUETTE, Mich., Nov. 22.—The storm has abated. The propeller Cuba is stranded on rocks on the Canadian side, below Nibish Rapids and is leaking. She declined assistance. The propeller Hopkins arrived at the Soo at 5 p. m. yesterday completely covered with ice. The captain reports a fearful experience. The steamer Queen of the West was outside just before the gale began and should report somewhere soon. Fears are felt for her safety and also for an unknown schooner sighted by the steamer Flak.

An Ohio River Tragedy.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Nov. 22.—A probable murder was committed on the steamboat Ingomar about ten miles below Portsmouth Saturday night while en route from Cincinnati. Joshua Bailey, stower of freight, ordered John Ferrell, a deck hand, to help pump out the lighter. He refused, and received the regulation cussing. While Bailey was stooping over the pump Ferrell slipped up behind and dealt him a deadly blow with an ax, the pole crushing his skull. On arrival at this port Bailey was removed to the city hospital. Ferrell escaped off the boat and has not been apprehended. Surgeons Davidson and Fulton performed an operation, removing ten pieces of skull, several of which had been driven down into the brain, which oozed out of the wound. He will probably die. Both men live in Cincinnati.

Funeral of Miss Emma Lazarus.

New York, Nov. 22.—Funeral services of the simplest character were held this morning over the remains of Miss Emma Lazarus, the poetess, at her late residence, No. 18 West Tenth street. Rabbi Mendes and Neito officiated. The interment was in Cypress Hill cemetery.

Quiet on the Plantations.

DONALDSONVILLE, La., Nov. 22.—The laborers throughout the parish resumed work Friday and the strike declared at an end. The sugar mills are working full-handed and quietness prevails everywhere.

Don't Hunt on Sunday.

GREENSBORO, Ind., Nov. 22.—Ira Tanner, of Adams, while hunting Sunday with John Turner, was accidentally shot by him, receiving a dangerous wound in the side.

Won't Go Under Any Circumstances.

New York, Nov. 22.—A Washington special says that Hines, the center flied, has refused to go to Indianapolis at any salary.

ANARCHISTS' LAST HOURS.

REV. DR. BOLTON'S SERMON ON THE EXECUTED MEN.

He Compares Their Death With That of the Penitent Thief Who Was Crucified With Jesus—Nina Van Zandt Starving Herself to Death—Sensational Report.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The Rev. Dr. Bolton, of the First Methodist church, who attended the executed Anarchists during their last hours, compares their death with that of the impenitent thief, who was crucified with Jesus. Feiden and Schwau are likened to the thief on the cross who sought forgiveness. Dr. Bolton's comparison was the subject chosen Sunday by him for his regular weekly sermon. The doctor's audience was a large one. He said:

"Men are moved, led and influenced very largely by the thought and presence of other men. This impenitent thief on the cross had been a leader in his profession—a robber of noble, perhaps national, reputation. Such was sure to have many admirers and supporters, who, in the hour of his imprisonment, sent him cheer until his life was pushed out into an abnormal channel, and he lived on the flattery and cheer of his followers."

"Now as he is led out multitudes follow him and strengthen him with their presence and words. How can he recant in their presence, when many of them had taken lessons in robbery from him? Nor is it strange, when he heard the soldiers and rabble waiting below that he, 'out of his torture,' should join them. It takes more of a man to change, acknowledge his wrongs and seek for pardon under such circumstances, than it does to die in sin defiantly."

The preacher described the Anarchists, nervously walking from the door to the back of the cells—walking like caged tigers when all hope of escape is gone. Three of these men call for and receive liquor, one declines but asks for a cup of strong coffee, which is given him.

"'Now,' he says, 'I die like Jesus die!—at the hand of my murderers.'"

"'Why? I asked."

"'Because I can not help it.'"

"They move to the scaffold, but they move together, looking into each other's face, cheered and sustained from within by stimulants, and from without by the cheers of thousands who think as they thought and have been taught by them. When the caps fall over their eyes light is shut out, they see each other no more, and are stimulated no more by the presence of officials and newspaper men, whom they look upon as their enemies."

"They began to speak, but oh, the last, wistful, pale, unearthly look of one to me as the cap fell over his face and he began, 'not knowing what he was saying,' to talk. Thus they die, unrepentant, recklessly, without hope, and 10,000 will take courage to do their works of violence and die in sin as these men died. But remember, 'he is a fool who saith there is no God.'"

Nina Van Zandt Starving to Death.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—A local paper this morning publishes an article in which it is stated that Nina Van Zandt, Spies' proxy wife, is wasting away, food not having passed her lips since the day before Spies was hanged. In conversation with a reporter she expressed much bitterness against the press and those who "murdered" her husband.

Mrs. Van Zandt appeared greatly concerned about her daughter's health and fears the worst. She said: "Had you heard that an effort was made to revive August after his body reached the undertaker's? Well, it is true. The physicians used an electric battery, applying it to his body for an hour or more in the hopes of fanning into a flame the spark of life which seemed to be lingering in his veins. August never appeared to be dead. His lips were moist and his cheeks were warm after his body was received from the jail. But in August's case no encouraging effects were produced, and though at one time there was a spark of hope, the physicians soon gave it up, and permitted the embalmers to go to work. That was a great mistake. The embalmers began work at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and he died at 12. They should have waited several hours or more, and perhaps a day or two."

CHICAGO'S CAGED BOODLERS.

They Are Making a Mighty Effort to Get Out on Bail.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The county boodlers intend to fight to the death to keep out of the Joliet penitentiary, where the ex-comrade, Capt. McLaughrey, is now serving out his sentence. This morning the formal documents in their appeal were filed in the appellate court, and some time this week application will be made to admit them to bail. All things considered they are not having a hard time of it in the jail by any means. They are quartered in the boys' department, by all odds the most comfortable part of the building, are given the freedom of the corridor all day, while all the delicacies of the season are served in each meal-time by three dusky waiters from the fashionable cafe and restaurant across the street.

Ex-County Commissioner Leyden, who is worth something over $100,000, chafes under the enforced restraint, but Warden Varnell, Engineer McDonald, and ex-County Commissioners Van Pelt, Ochs, Wasserman and Wren are in the best of spirits, and express themselves as confident that bail will be granted. The appeal cannot be heard under the ordinary course of proceedings until the march term, and unless bail is allowed they may find that after all it would be as well to stay for Joliet, and save five months on the two years' sentence.

A New Copper's Sunday Work.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 22.—William Wyrick was appointed a member of the police force Saturday night, and Sunday, in the garb of a farmer, he went from one saloon to another, and wherever possible, secured admittance, and discussed the effect of the drought upon the corn crop. The result is a crop of seven arrested saloonkeepers for violating the Sunday law in "selling intoxicants. The list contains some of the worst offenders, who have hitherto managed to avoid arrest."

BARNUM'S CIRCUS BURNED.

The Winter Quarters of the Great Show Destroyed by Fire.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 22.—At 10 last night fire broke out in the winter quarters of Barnum's "Greatest Show on Earth." The blaze is supposed to have originated from a burning lamp. The fire department and thousands of citizens were soon on the scene and every effort was made to save the animals, hundreds of which were liberated and escaped. A tremendous uproar ensued. The main building was destroyed, but the car sheds were saved. Trained horses, lions, tigers, hyenas, monkeys, birds, cats and three rhinoceroses perished.

Two elephants were burned to death—Alice and the white elephant Samson. The other elephants rushed about the city and one attacked a man, breaking three ribs and one of his legs. An old lion was dragged out of the flames by his keeper. The crowd attempted to kill him by beating his head with clubs and firing shots into him with a revolver. He got away, and scaling a ten foot fence took refuge in a barn where he killed a cow, but was finally shot and killed while eating the fresh meat.

Eight men who were sleeping in the building barely escaped alive; one who was asleep was pulled out of bed. At night most of the elephants had been corralled. The rhinoceros was got out of the flames badly burned and cut. Many of the idols which are exhibited with the show were burned. The polar bear was in a building apart from the other animals and is unharmed.

At 2:30 a. m. there was but one elephant missing and men were searching for him. There is a rumor that two employees of the winter quarters are missing, but the report cannot be verified.

A watchman asserts that he discovered the flames and gave the alarm, when he was hit on the head with a blunt instrument and knocked to the ground.

Messrs. Barnum and Bailey were both in New York, but their agent, Mr. Rothwell, says new attractions will at once be secured and all will soon be in readiness for next year's tour. He also states the buildings will be rebuilt in Jersey City, as it is a more convenient location.

The loss is estimated at from $500,000 to $700,000 with only $100,000 insurance.

Fire in a Mine Shaft.

CALUMET, Mich., Nov. 22.—Fire was discovered yesterday morning in shaft No. 1 of the Calumet & Hecla mine, one hundred feet north of the main engine shaft. All the shafts except those at the South Hecla have been closed, and an attempt is being made to extinguish the fire by carbonic gas, as was done in the case of the recent fire in the mine. The company has an immense supply of chemicals on hand, and 500 feet of four inch gas pipe were put down the burning shaft in two hours. Owing to the network of timber the fire is likely to prove disastrous. The loss of time is a serious misfortune to the miners, and especially at this time of the year, and following so closely upon a similar fire, which necessitated the closing of the mine for several weeks. Incendiaryism is suspected.

Shirt Factory Burned.

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 22.—G. H. Cleveland's shirt factory was burned this morning, and the Camden grist mill adjoining was damaged. The loss is $17,000; insurance $14,000.

B. & O. DIRECTORS.

Annual Meeting of the Stockholders and Election in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 22.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company was held to-day at the Central building, Reverdy Johnson, Jr., presiding. The following directors, representing the private holdings of stock, were elected: William T. Burns, James Carey Coole, Robert Garrett, T. Harrison Garrett, Decatur H. Miller, George W. Dobbin, John Gregg, George A. Von Linden, James Sloan, Jr., Charles T. Mayer, William Kayser, James D. McLane. The latter four are new members, and will take care of the interests of the Drexel-Morgan syndicate. The retiring directors are: John K. Cowen, Joshua G. Harvey, W. W. Taylor and Aubrey Pearce.

The annual report of president pro tem., William F. Burns, of the company for the year ended September 30, 1887, was adopted. It shows that the revenues of the company were $20,653,085.94, being an increase of $2,286,598.71 as compared with 1886, and the expenses were $14,120,181.20; net earnings, $6,532,904.70. The operating of the Philadelphia division cost $75,220.51, more than its gross earnings. The gross earnings of the roads east of the Ohio river were $11,201,348.34, an increase of $1,354,735.30, as compared with 1886, and the working expenses on the same have increased $1,087,757.70, making a comparative net increase of the net profits of $306,977.60. The coal trade of the main stem shows an aggregate of 4,209,477 tons. The tonnage of through merchandise east and west were 3,537,007 tons, an increase of 804,088 tons. The passenger earnings on the entire system were $4,875,575.63, an increase over 1886 of $603,211.77. The tonnage earnings were $15,760,460.27, an increase of $1,634,384.94.

"Under an arrangement," says the report, "made with a syndicate of eminent bankers funds sufficient to take care of the floating debt of the company have been secured and this debt, it is expected, will be funded during the coming year in accordance with a plan which has received the approval of the syndicate."

Resolutions were voted upon and adopted looking to the acquisition of the stock and bonds of the Grafton & Greenbrier railroad; and the acquisition by the Baltimore & Ohio of bonds of the consolidated lines of the Wheeling & Pittsburgh. The effect of the latter resolution is simply to enable the Baltimore & Ohio to give the trustees under the new general consolidated mortgage the bonds as additional security under that mortgage.

A Detective Immortalizes Himself.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 22.—A private detective engaged in working up evidence against the murders of Detective Hurligan at Ravenna, O., says evidence has been obtained recently that "Harry" McMunn, the head of the gang, was shot in the fight with the officers on the train; that he made his way to the woods near Ravenna, where he died two or three days afterward. His body was either buried or thrown into the river by his companions.

HALSTEAD, of the Commercial Gazette, writes as though he regrets that the negro was ever given the right to vote.

The typhoid fever epidemic at Cincinnati continues to decrease. Twenty six deaths from the disease were reported last week against forty the week before.

The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette seems to lament the fact that the South gained sixteen Congressmen and two Senators by the war. What's Halstead going to about it?

ARRANGEMENTS are being made for an exhibition of Kentucky's resources of coal, iron, minerals and lumber from every section of the State at the Centennial at Cincinnati next year.

FORAKER, of Ohio, says he could not afford to refuse a nomination for President, which means that he will leave nothing undone to secure that honor at the next National convention of his party.

The postmasters of the third and fourth class of the Tenth Congressional district of this State want better salaries. They met in convention at Winchester a few days ago and after appointing delegates to the National Convention of Postmasters, which meets at Washington in December, they adopted resolutions citing the insufficiency of pay when compared with the duties and responsibilities of the offices, and petitioning Congress for an increase of compensation. Some people never know when they have enough.

The Somerset Republican, after enumerating recent important business enterprises engaged in there, concludes a "boom" article as follows:

"Local option has not led Somerset to a great deal; the town is livelier than ever, and there is a much whistler drunk here. We do not believe local option has been the cause of the town's growth, neither will it make the town a dead town. The town simply loses the $2.00 revenue from the saloons, which amount has to be made up by the property holders. The business men of Somerset have too much 'git up and git' in them to let the loss of $2.00 in taxes render the town dull and lifeless."

Stock and Crops.
 At Lexington last week $100,000 worth of horses were sold in two days.

Oregon's wheat crop is the largest ever known. The surplus for export is estimated at fully 430,000 tons.

W. S. Fant, of Flemingsburg, paid $150 for Jordana, an imported Holstein cow, at Cincinnati, last week.

Reports from the West indicate a falling off in the acreage seeded to winter wheat, as compared with last year.

An aphorism among Western farmers is that the steer is sure money, the pig quick money, and the colt big money.

Don't expect that the poultry business will "run itself" any more than any other business. No gains without pains.

Major H. C. London, of Georgetown, O., has purchased near two million pounds of tobacco within the last four weeks, in Brown and Clermont counties, O., and Mason County, Ky. He is limited to three million pounds, and is buying for Buchanan & Lyle, of New York. His purchases to date average 19 cents per pound.

Moses Kahn, agent for Mr. M. Goldsmith, cattle exporter to Europe, with headquarters in New York, shipped from Paris Saturday morning 230 Christmas hives bought from Mr. J. E. Clay, which averaged the remarkable weight of 1,920 pounds. They were said by cattle men to have been the finest bunch of cattle that ever left Kentucky.

Commonwealth Against Shafer.

The case of the Commonwealth against Shafer taken up from this county has been affirmed by the Court of Appeals. Shafer was indicted a year or so ago for shooting at and wounding John T. Sears. The parties reside in the Orangeburg precinct, and are farmers. The trouble between them resulted from a quarrel about a plow.

The first trial resulted in a hung jury, but at the next term of court a verdict of guilty was found. The penalty was fixed at a fine of $430.

Shafer appealed from this judgment and the case was first taken to the Superior Court. A few weeks ago it was transferred to the Court of Appeals. A decision was reported Saturday affirming the sentence of the lower court and the fine will now have to be paid.

SATURDAY'S PHENOMENON.

Explanation of the Strange and Sudden Change that Startled the People of Three Cities.

Editor Bulletin: In regard to the remarkable atmospheric phenomenon which occurred in this locality on last Saturday afternoon, we have a few words to say. In our estimation the mystery is of easy solution. Its production, cause and disappearance is theoretically about as follows: For several days the atmosphere had been surcharged with a thick, smoky, vaporous matter. On Saturday morning the wind began to blow in fitful gusts chasing these vaporous particles hither and thither, and finally driving them into an upper strata, where the air was perhaps forty degrees colder, thus causing a condensation of the accumulated matter. A short period in such a low temperature sufficed to congeal or solidify the moving mass of cloud, thus rendering it an entirely opaque body, as it drifted between the earth and sun, and the usual rays of light. Hence the extreme darkness.

Then, again the cloud was evidently on the descent, so thus reaching a warmer area caused expansion, loosening the frozen particles, which reached the earth in the shape of heavy flakes of snow. The large quantity emitted soon rendered the cloud once more transparent, and finally its dissolution left the sky clear and tranquil, with nearly forty degrees lower temperature than during the earlier part of the day. W. W. W.

ANOTHER EXPLANATION.

Editor Bulletin: The atmospheric phenomenon referred to in yesterday's issue was peculiar and unusual. But there was nothing wonderful or inexplicable about it.

The day was comparatively mild, thus giving the air a large capacity for invisible moisture. The barometer was extremely low—in fact lower than it has been this fall; thus showing that the invisible vapor, which the atmosphere was capable of holding, was actually in it.

In the afternoon a keen, cold current of air suddenly set in from the north-east. The necessary effect of this was to quickly condense the vapor of the atmosphere into an enormous mass of mist, and so occasioned the darkness which occurred.

That this was the true cause of the phenomenon is rendered certain by the snow which was immediately precipitated. In Russia, it is said that the beautiful sight of a snow-fall in a ball-room is sometimes occasioned by suddenly opening the doors to the frosty air without when the air is heated within, and laden with the moisture exhaled by the assembly.

As for the peculiar appearance of the sky at the time, somewhat is to be attributed to a lively imagination, but more to the fact that we were able to look out from under the thick mass between us and the sun to the regions along the horizon that were yet uninfluenced by the cold.

It is stated that the same thing occurred elsewhere, and, doubtless, it would wherever the same atmospheric conditions existed as were present here. Wherever that keen, cold, northwest wind rushed in on a mild, moist atmosphere, the result would be the same.

We are informed that in some places vivid flashes of lightning were seen. Electricity is always, to a greater or less extent, generated by such a condensation of the moisture of the atmosphere, and it is not at all to be wondered at that in some places it was generated to such an extent as to cause the flashes of lightning which were seen. A Bloody Affair.

WOODBRINE, Ky., Nov. 22.—A desperate and bloody conflict took place at Jellico, Tenn., last evening, resulting in four deaths. The difficulty arose in the afternoon when Marshal Woolwine attempted to arrest Noah Miller and some other miners for disorderly conduct. The men resisted, and Miller was killed, but his friends succeeded in putting the officer to flight. At 8 p. m. the friends of Miller were reinforced and attacked the marshal, wounding two of his posse, James and John L. Smith. Frank Kincaid (colored) and Press Willoughby were killed and Dick Kerr so badly wounded that he died this morning. Marshal Woolwine is under arrest, but more killing is expected.

A Deadly Duel.

MORRISON, Cal., Nov. 22.—A desperate duel, in which both combatants were killed, occurred on a ranch eighteen miles from here yesterday. Three years ago Alexander Gloss bought a ranch from John Everhart. He failed to meet the payments and last spring he turned the ranch over to Richard Ginnold, and ordered Gloss to leave. Gloss refused and the two men have been living as neighbors, but at swords' point. Yesterday they quarreled over a fence and Gloss proceeded to Ginnold's house, armed with a revolver. Ginnold came to his door, and as he did so Gloss shot him in the breast. Ginnold's brother-in-law handed Ginnold a shotgun, and thus armed, the wounded man staggered out to meet his foe. Gloss fired again, but the shot did not take effect, and Ginnold, in return, fired the contents of both barrels into Gloss' stomach. He fell, but not before he had fired two more bullets into Ginnold's body. The families of both men had been eye witnesses to the dreadful affair, and when both men fell they were taken care of by their respective families. Gloss died in a few minutes. Ginnold lived a few hours.

A Mysterious Affair.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—An old man named Koppel died a week ago, as was supposed from congestive chill. A piece of paper was found among his effects, on which was written that his partner had put something in his food. Koppel's body was dissected and an analysis of the stomach revealed a large quantity of arsenic. The partner, White, claims to know nothing about the affair. He says he never ate with Koppel. Mrs. Koppel says her husband told her the day he died that he had been to lunch with White and felt sick. The men did hardly any business and there seems to be no motive for a murder by White. Koppel was insured for $7,000 for his wife's benefit.

A Mysterious Blaze.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 22.—Fire Sunday night destroyed about $3,000 worth of law books belonging to Judge Sage in room 11 of the government building. There had been no fire in the room, and just how the blaze started among the book shelves is a mystery. For a time rumor was current that the fire had been started to destroy documentary evidence against the Fidelity bank prisoners. No credence is given this theory by the district attorney and others connected with the building. Every indication points to spontaneous combustion.

Pedestrian Score.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23.—The score in the six days' pedestrian contest, which started at the rink last midnight, is as follows: Littlewood, 83 miles; Albert, 79 miles; Moore, 77 miles; Noremac, 76 miles; Escon, 74 miles; Burns, 73 miles; Cox, 74 miles; Hart, 71 miles; Panchot, 70 miles; Vint, 69 miles; Cronon, 64 miles; Strokel, 59 miles; Legrand, 51 miles.

The Housekeeper's Recreation.

A woman can be a good housekeeper without taking all her time to do her housework. If she cannot let her, after all, be satisfied to be an ordinarily good one, and take some of the time from her previously self imposed drudgery for reading, education of children, self improvement and for recreation. There is no reason why a long programme of work should be laid out for every day, nor why it should be carried through at all hazards. If each hour of the day is arranged for some kind of work, one hour at least ought to be set apart for recreation, and that hour, of all others, rigidly observed.—Cor. Good House-keeping.

"Old Fashioned" Rooms.

"Old fashioned" rooms are rather a fad just now. They are furnished just as hand-some rooms were furnished before the electric light came in, with hair cloth furniture, pictures in the regulation places—over piano and sofa; cut glass chandeliers, with tinsel drops; heavy curtains, looped back over lace curtains, and all the other adjuncts of the "best parlors" of the past. Strange though it may seem, such rooms have a certain solid staidness of their own, and rather relieve the eye, wearied with the wilderness of decoration that marks the modern drawing room.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Buttons Going Out.

There is waiving among the button makers. The gorgeous buttons that have illuminated ladies' dresses by the dozens and dozens are going out of fashion. The correct thing now is to conceal the fastenings. Boxes and boxes of buttons lie unsold on the shelves of the dealers. But—such are the compensations of trade—the book and eye sellers are delighted.—New York Sun.

Relief for Hiccough.

If you should have hiccough try one of the following remedies, every one of which is vouched for by different authorities. Slightly refrigerate the lobe of the ear; clasp the hands with arms raised above the head; press the finger each side under the ear, near jaw-bone; inhale chloroform until relieved.

ASHLAND AFIRE.

A Heavy Loss Reported and the Blaze Still Burning—Cattlettsburg is Appealed to for Help.

THREATENED DESTRUCTION.

At 10 o'clock this morning a report reached this city that a fierce fire was raging at Ashland, Boyd County, and that the town was threatened with destruction.

An hour later the report was confirmed. The operator in the Maysville and Big Sandy telegraph office at that place wired Marshall Hall, the operator at this end of the line, brief particulars of the conflagration.

At 10 o'clock the fire had been raging for some time. Five buildings had been destroyed. The flames were spreading and the town was threatened with destruction. The greatest excitement prevailed, and Cattlettsburg had been appealed to for help.

In the excitement and confusion the operator gave no estimate of the damage up to the hour named.

The fire is reported to have started in a building near the river front.

Ashland is a place of considerable size, having a population of about 4,000, and is the eastern terminus of the Maysville and Big Sandy Railroad.

LATER.

At 11:30 a. m. fourteen frame buildings had been destroyed and the fire was still burning.

One of the largest and best audiences ever in the opera house greeted Emmet in "Fritz" last evening.

ABOUT noon Sunday the country home of William Warfield, a Lexington short-horn breeder, was destroyed by fire, together with a valuable lot of paintings, the records of all his shorthorns, and nearly all the furniture. Loss, about $17,000; insured for $10,000.

A. BONA, of Lexington, will open a first-class confectionery before long in the rooms now occupied by Robert Bissett, on Second street. Mr. Bissett will remove his plumbing establishment to a one-story brick building soon to be erected in the rear of Kackley's gallery.

LAST Saturday morning S. P. Stuart fell from a freight train near Bailey's Station, on the C. and O. Railroad, while passing over the ice-covered tender to a box-car, and both legs were crushed off. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, at Lexington, where he died in a short time, after his legs and three fingers were amputated.

The Virginia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at its recent session, adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That we are profoundly convinced of the evil character and influence of the theater and of its power as a promoter of irreligion, immorality and vice.

Resolved, That we most affectionately and earnestly exhort our people to see their faces against this thing as a diversion which can not be used in the name of the Lord Jesus.

The following from the Sunday Morning Call meets with a hearty endorsement from the BULLETIN: "The papers of the State have recently been saying some handsome things about the probable candidacy of our popular Circuit Court Clerk for the Democratic nomination for Clerk of the Court of Appeals. We are not sure that Mr. Parry has ever had any serious thoughts of making the race, but we are sure that he deserves all the clever things that our exchanges have said about him in that connection. If he should conclude to yield to the request of some of his friends and enter the race he would soon convince some of the opposing candidates that he is a great deal younger than his patrician beard indicates. We think, however, it would be more agreeable to Mr. Parry's inclinations to hold his present honorable position than to indulge in a doubtful canvass for the one above mentioned."

COLONEL GREEN'S CONDITION.

Statement From Physician as to Exact Nature of Wound—Who Shot Polk?

At last accounts from Lexington Mr. Green's condition continued favorable, and it is thought he is now out of danger.

The Lexington Transcript has obtained from Dr. Bryan, the attending physician, a statement as to the exact nature of Mr. Green's wound. A synopsis of the statement as published by the Transcript follows: "On last Thursday night, Mr. Green had the first chill; it was not heavy, nor very alarming, but still an untoward symptom. That the ball cut quite a deep wound was plain as the marks made by the bullet scraping against the bone, were plainly to be seen on the surface (the doctor kindly allowed the reporter to examine the bullet) and the wound clearly indicated that the bullet had turned after leaving the pistol and struck Mr. Green either butt-end first or sideways, tearing a large hole, and making a very ugly, ragged wound. This wound closed on the outside, and this in connection with the chill on Thursday night, gave reason for a slight alarm in the case. However, on Friday the doctor made an incision in the wound, inserted a discharge tube, and he trusts there is nothing serious to be now apprehended from the case, as the character of the discharge is such as to lead to the reasonable conclusion that the wound will heal kindly. The doctor wishes the public to know, most emphatically, that he has never said, and never considered, this wound as a small or trifling one. It has had some serious aspects from the first, and, even now, complications may arise which will cost Mr. Green his life; although, so far as can now be seen, he is in a fair way to recovery, and the doctor hopes for the best in the case."

The belief still prevails at Lexington that a third party took a hand in the affair and fired some of the shots. The Transcript says: "The announcement that Tom Green's pistol contained but four cartridges at the time he met Baldwin makes the presence of four bullet holes in the hotel wall besides the two in Baldwin's body a greater mystery. At the outside Green had but four bullets, now who fired the other two?"

"The theory has been advanced that when Mr. W. H. Polk attempted to prevent the effusion of blood, a friend of Baldwin fired two shots at him. Polk, recollecting hearing the cry, 'Let them alone, let them fight it out,' and immediately came the firing. Did a friend of Baldwin fire twice at Polk and then turn his gun on Green? That Green was not struck by any of Baldwin's bullets is quite probable, for Mr. Green, it is understood, was not hit at all till after Baldwin fell. It is stated that he is quite positive of this. Taking this for a basis and it would appear that the bullet that struck Green was fired by a third party, for the attending physician says that from the direction of the wound in Green's side it was impossible for the ball that made it to be fired by a person lying on the sidewalk. The wound is horizontal, tending downward from the front, and could not have been fired by Baldwin while lying on his back. A report in the Louisville Times says: 'Still later reports are that the ball which struck Green was fired by a third person—a man of small stature, with a light overcoat, who fired immediately after Baldwin fell and ran out South Limestone street.'

"The 'little man in the light overcoat' as seen by Captain Kidd, Frazier and others, may not be so much of a myth as at first supposed. At any rate, there are the four bullet marks on the wall, and two bullets lodged in Baldwin's body, all which could not have come from Green's pistol which only contained four charges when he commenced firing. The field for speculation and inquiry is ample, let some figure it all out and make the thing clear."

SAYS the Greenup Gazette: "Mr. Gabe Callahan, of near Hunnewell, has a dress made of common oil calico that was worn by himself when a baby, forty-nine years ago. It has been worn by father, son and grandson, and has been worn by twenty-two different children—seven of the children belonging to Mr. Callahan's family. The dress is made after the old style of infant waist, and is none the worse by wear."

FORTY negroes, who have been working above this city on the new railroad, left yesterday for their homes in Virginia. They went by way of the Kentucky Central and Chesapeake and Ohio roads. There was a car-load of them, and they were a happy lot. Each fellow is said to have had a bottle of Kentucky whisky stowed away in his pocket.

Rev. JOSEPH M. EVANS has returned from Scottsville, Allen County, where he was recently engaged in a revival meeting. The meeting resulted in an increase of the membership from six to thirty-five.

PROFESSIONAL PALLBEARING.

A Gloomy Trade, but Very Easy and Eminently Respectable.

He was a gloomy looking sort of person and his face wore an expression of woe that made one think he had stamped there as a sort of trade mark. He was clad in garments of the somberest hue, and from the wide weed on his high hat to the dead polish on his broad soled shoes he looked for all the world like a man in whose family there was a death at least once a year. When he came into the street car a sort of hush fell upon the passengers out of respect for his placarded sorrow. By and by the gloomy man was asked if he had met with a bereavement lately.

"No, indeed," he replied, "there has not been a death in my family for years."

"Why, then," asked his neighbor, with more curiosity than politeness, "do you dress in such deep mourning?"

"Oh, that's on account of my business."

"You are an undertaker, then?"

"No, I am a pall bearer," and noting the look of surprise in his interlocutor's face he went on: "Some years ago there was a strike in my trade. I am a carpenter, and during one of my idle days I passed a house where there was a funeral. Stopping to watch it I was approached by the undertaker, who asked me if I was going to the funeral. I said no, that I knew no one there. He then asked me if I had any objection to being a pall bearer. I said I had none, provided I was paid for it, and we finally struck a bargain. I made as much that afternoon as I would had I worked all day at my trade, and since then I have adopted pall bearing as a means of livelihood. I dress in black, as you see, and each morning look over the death notices. I have found that my services are very seldom required where the funeral is that of a young man or woman or where the deceased has belonged to any secret societies, and that my most profitable customers are those who have outlived most of their companions. If the dead person happens to be an unmarried lady past the meridian of life I am nearly always certain of the job. I find that at funerals the proportion of female attendants outnumbers the male about four to one, and that most of the latter are close relatives. As it is generally the rule to select the pall bearers from among those not connected with the family you can see that my services are very frequently in demand. I generally seek out the undertaker and make my bargain with him, and I average about two funerals a day. It is a nice, easy sort of life and eminently respectable. You will have to excuse me now, as I have a funeral in this street and must get off here."—Philadelphia News.

THE FISHERY CONFERENCE

FIRST DAY'S SESSION OF THE DIS-TRIBUTION SIX.

Arranging the Hours of Sitting Mode of Procedure and Other Details—A Strictly Private Meeting—Carlisle and Randall—Other Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Promptly at 12 stock members of the fishery commission of which the world has heard so much, as sembled in the diplomatic reception room at the department of state. To-day's session of the commissioners was for the purpose of arranging the hours of sitting; mode of procedure and other details. Messrs.
Angell and Putnam were in the room when Messrs. Chamberlain, Tupper and West arrived, and a few minutes later they were joined by Secretary Bayard. When all of the gentlemen had entered, the doors were closed on the distinguished six—no private secretary from either side being admitted.
The feeling at the department of state today appears to favor the issuance of a daily bulletin, or brief resume of proceedings, as the best method of keeping the public informed of the deliberations of the convention.

"What are they going to do about it?"
That is the question frequently asked, and about which there is really a good deal of anxiety. Nobody can tell. The more the subject is discussed the more its dignity and possibilities are recognized. The attempt to drag in side issues such as commercial union, reciprocity, tariff, shipping, and merchant marine interests, and even the purchase of a part of the British possessions, broaden the field so much that there is no telling when or where or how the end may be reached.

"What is the main question at issue, put in the fewest possible and plainest words?"
was asked of a gentleman who has spent a pretty large share of a pretty long life among the fishermen of the eastern coast, and who knows their side of the story perfectly.

"The main question," he answered, "is merely whether the Canadian government will let our vessels land at their ports to buy bait and the necessary provisions and supplies. That's about the size of it. You see we had a treaty in 1815 by which our vessels were prohibited fishing nearer than three miles from the Canadian coast at any point, and instead of this line circling about the indentations of the coast, it is drawn from point to point straight across. There was also a proviso that prohibited the sale of bait to American fishing vessels, prescribing a heavy penalty for that offense."

"What could be the meaning of such a law?"

"It was probably intended to protect the Canadian fishermen by making it impossible for fishermen of the United States to fish there. Of course they can't fish without bait."

"What is this bait which they buy from the Canadians along the shores?"

"Small fish, generally. They are used for bait by the fishers in deep water, and they can only be had near the shore, for the small fish don't venture for out at sea. The people on shore take them with nets and keep them alive, to sell to the fishing vessels.
They made a good deal of money at it, too, until the Canadian government put a stop to it. The fishing vessels of the United States left at a fair estimate half a million dollars a year along the Canadian coast among the poor people of that section."

"Why has the Canadian government suddenly refused permission for this which has been going on so long?"

"Because of the expiration of a treaty made some twenty years or so ago, which throws everything back, as they claim, to the old treaty of seventy years ago."

"But if these people want to sell their bait to United States fishers and the vessels can't come ashore to get it, why don't they send it out to them, outside the three mile limit?"

"Because the Canadian government won't permit it. They keep a lot of small vessels prowling up and down the coast all the time, and if a vessel goes off shore to fish or for any other purpose, they watch her and follow to see that she does not sell anything to the yankees. If she does her owner must suffer for it by a heavy fine and perhaps imprisonment."

"How do the people of that section take this sort of thing since it cuts them out of their business?"

"They curse the government up hill and down dale. They make no concealment of their disgust and thorough hatred of the government. They speak kindly of the queen herself, but that is all."

"They would probably take kindly, then,
to the proposition of Edward Atkinson, that we solve the problem by buying New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and perhaps Newfoundland for fifty million dollars or so."

"They would be delighted with it. Nothing could please them more. It would be a happy solution of the question, too. It would give us what we ought to have had all the time, the strip of country running clear up to the St. Lawrence, and would also put an end to all this troublesome fishery question. Beside it would give us a land station at Newfoundland, only three days by steamer from Europe."

Carlisle and Randall.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Mr. Randall recently wrote Mr. Carlisle asking if he was correctly reported as saying that he had heard that Mr. Randall was assisting Mr.
Theobis in contesting Mr. Carlisle's seat.
Mr. Carlisle replied that he had never had the alleged interview. He had seen newspaper statements that Mr. Randall was helping Mr. Theobis, but never credited them, and had always told his friends that he believed the statements to be false.

Hazing Forest Fires.

SEYMOUR, Ind., Nov. 22.—The forests in the northern part of this county took fire again on Friday, and the fire is now raging with fearful effect. The people are powerless to do anything to check the destructive elements on account of continuous high winds and no water. The destruction of timber and fencing is already very great. What the end will be no one can tell.

THE BEE HIVE.

During the whole of last week we advertised in extra large space, for the benefit of the people, the extremely low prices at which we are selling our goods.

We are convinced that the public appreciate the bargains we offered, for our stores were thronged and crowded during the entire week, and the people found that we had in stock everything exactly as advertised, and all—rich or poor—received the same courteous treatment, and fair, honest dealing.

We shall, for the next few weeks, continue this great sacrifice sale, because our stock is too large. We have too many goods and we need money.

Then, again, we are daily receiving invoices of Christmas Goods, some right new Novel ties in Bique Figures, Fancy Plush Boxes, &c., &c. Now we must make room for these, and therefore this great sacrifice sale will be continued for a few weeks more. Come at once and look for yourselves

We have made an especial big cut in prices of Cloaks and Jackets. Our $3.50 Jacket marked down to $2.15; our $5 Jacket to $3.75; Children's Cloaks from 50 cents up. Whoever needs anything in

Dry Goods and Notions, should call on us, as we will guarantee to save you 50 per cent. on anything you want to purchase, and surely in times like these it is desirable to save money.

REMEMBER we refund the money on anything returned to us proving unsatisfactory.
